

VIDEO GAME - CASTING SIDES

BRISK

DIALOGUE

Determined, competitive, tomboy, athletic. 13 years old.
Female. Her goal is to surpass Rascal and finally beat him in a race. She trains like mad to manifest this.

BRISK

Hey, hero! You better not get all soft on me out there. I've been shaving seconds off my time every week. When you get back, I am gonna absolutely smoke you.

(gives a playful noogie)

Don't go get all legendary on me, I'll never hear the end of it.

"Ooh, Brisk, remember when Rascal saved the world?" Yeah, I'll remember. Right after I lap you.

(fondly)

But seriously? You got this. Like we say, "always full throttle". Just don't forget where the track started, alright?

Brisk is driven by loyalty, admiration, and a deep desire to measure up to someone who once made her feel seen.

BRISK (CONT'D)

You know, I've been chasing you since we were eight. You probably don't even remember it... the moment that changed everything for me.

(beat, vulnerable)

The other kids -- they used to call me "Brisket". Joked the ground would split open if I tried to run. But you didn't laugh. You challenged me to a race.

(beat)

You wiped the floor with me. Obviously. I might've lost, but you made me believe I could be more than a loser.

(she punches his arm)

I will beat you someday. Just you wait.

*

BARKS

In game dialogue and voice lines.

BRISK (CONT'D)

One day you're gonna eat my dust... and like it!

Legs, don't fail me now.

I was built for this!

Okay, show-off.

You're messin' with the wrong girl.

That all you got?!

I'm not behind, I'm pacing myself.

We finish this together. Like always.